Commissioners recommend O'Neill P. Quinlan for RTD District G Director

The Arapahoe County Board of County Commissioners will recommend O'Neill P. Quinlan to serve as District G Director on the Regional Transportation District Board. Commissioners will formally consider the appointment during its Jan. 4 public hearing.

The County received four applications for the vacancy, which was created when newly elected RTD Director Gary Halpin resigned his post last month. To fill the vacancy, the County with the largest number of eligible electors in the RTD director district – Arapahoe County – was required to appoint a director to fulfill the term until the next regular election.

Quinlan, who has served as District G Director since 2000 but lost to Halpin in the election, received numerous letters of support from citizens, local cities and community organizations.

“With FasTracks ahead, Neill has the passion, energy and expertise to help guide RTD through these exiting times,” said Commissioner Lynn Myers. “He understands the public transportation needs for the south metro region and will be a good representative for our area.”
